C. yesterday was an unbounded success. Manhattan Field, always in good order, had received extra attention for the gala occasion. The marks for the many games stood out in bright relief against the verdant sward of the arena, while the tennis courts at the rear of stand D looked almost too nice to play upon. Early visitors had plenty of leisure time to comment on all these features before the crowd of the afternoon set in.

When the marksmen opened their grand battue on the artificial fowls the detonation of the fusiliade was echoed from almost empty benches. Outside on the river front, however, every vantage point awarmed with sightseers, and when these trooped into the grounds at the termination of the aquatic programme there was no longer a lack of life to give color to the picture. The tournament opened promptly at 11 o'clock in the morning with a clay-pigeon shooting contest. Frederick G. Moore was soon conspicuous, and smashed five birds in rapid succession, before his opponents discovered that he had been using his own cartridges instead of those supplied on the ground. There was a protest, and it was entertained, but the shooter was allowed to retain credit for the clays he had already smashed. He finally won the match, and made only six misses out of twenty-five shots. The results were:

The Church of One Lady of Good Counsel.

The Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel, in Fast Ninetieth street, will be dedicated this morning at 11 o'clock by Archibishop Corrigan. After the dedicatory ceremony a pontifical mass will be celebrated by Bishop McDonnell of Brooklyn. The sermon will be by Bishop O'Farrell of Trenton.

The new church, which is one of the most beautiful in this city, was begun nearly seven years ago. The corner stone was laid about six years ago by Archbishop Corrigan. It being the first Catholic house of worship in this country dedicated to Our Lady of Good Counsel, it was the aim of the rector, the Rev. William O'Kelly, who was attached to old St. Peter's Church in Barclay street when Bishop O'Farrell was rector there, to make it a notable addition to the church architecture of the city. The parish has been recently established, but numbers several thousand members. One of the large contributors to the parish is Mr. George Ehret. More than $200,000 has been spent on the building, exclusive of land and a rectory which adjoins it.

The style of the building, which was planned by Mr. Thomas H. Poole, is composite. The outer walls are of dove-colored Vermont marble, ornamented with heavy copings. While

The latter were the revolutionary army. The latter were condemned to the penitentiary for terms ranging from one to seventeen years, but Nulla was sentenced to death.

An effort was made to save his life. His father-in-law and other relatives, members of President Leiva's Cabinet, interceded in his behalf, and all the foreign Consuls and most of the American cutizens resident in Honduras signed a petition asking that his pfinishment be banishment or imprisonment in the pehitentary. After keeping the matter under advisement for two weeks the President signed the death warrant, and Naila was shot by a squad of Honduras soldiers.

At the Museums,

Even though the price of admission is but a dime, and the name of "dime museum" nat urally sticks to any amusement resort that advertises entertainments of the museum class, there are from time to time, nevertheless, in some of the big museums of this city attractions which appeal to the very Les classes of citizens. This is pointedly true of the current week at Huber's Palace Museum on East Fourteenth street.
